Stamina and Speed: Light harness horses are bred and trained to go three or four heats, usually a mile each, per race or four dashes a week. A horse going a mile in 2:00 (two minutes) averages a 30 mile an hour clip and a mile in 2:10 slightly less than 29 miles and hour. A horse going a two minute rate covers 44 feet a second. The runner can go 20 seconds faster than a trotter or pacer for a mile. It is often debated whether a trotter could win the second and third heats from a runner in one afternoon with each heat 30 minutes apart.

Age of Horses: Harness horses-to-be are born during the first four or five months of the year and are known as weanlings or sucklings. They become yearlings on January first following their birth, even though they are not 12 months old. The larger stock farms raise 20 to 100 weanlings and them at auction in the second fall when they are year-olds and then they are usually prepared to race as two-year olds by their purchasers. Occasionally yearlings are trained to carts or sulkies, but never race. Horses sometimes race when they are fifteen years old, live to over 30 years. A "green" horse is one which has never made a public appearance in a race or vs. time.
